Vol. XI. Numb. 31.

THE OBSERVATOR.

On the News of a Peace, and the Scheme of it given us by Abel's Maſters. Some Hints at the Danger of the Hanover Succeſſion from the Principles and Practices of the raging Faction.

From Saturday, April 12. to Wedneſday, April 16. 1712.

Countrym. WE have a mighty Talk of a Peace, Maſter; but I can't for my Life underſtand what ſort of a Peace 'tis: None of our Advices from Utrecht ſay any thing like it; but, on the contrary, that the Allies have not yet come to treat upon any one Article in the general Congreſs; nor do I ſee how they can, ſo long as the firſt Preliminary is not adjuſted, viz. Whether they ſhall treat in Writing, or by Word of Mouth.

Obſ. Why do'ſt ſay ſo, Roger? Don't you know that Abel's Maſters, who are Lords paramount, have determin'd the Matter, that the Emperor and the Dutch ſhall treat by Word of Mouth, or that I don't know how many of the Allies will make their ſeparate Terms with France?

Countrym. What d'ye tell me of Abel's Maſters; do ye think that any body regards what's ſaid by thoſe Cods-heads, or their hackney Libellers, who diſcharge whole Cart loads of Slander upon our chief Confederates every day?

Obſ. Why prithee, Roger, that Argument turns againſt you; for to be ſure the Maſters and Directors of thoſe Libellers muſt think themſelves to be very Great Men, and well ſeconded, otherwiſe they durſt not make ſo bold as they do, not only with our Confederates, but with our own Conſtitution. You know how they have treated his Electoral Highneſs of Hanover, and his Memorial; they have call'd his Family an unneceſſary Come-over; they have rais'd Batterys to demoliſh the Acts and Treatys by which the Succeſſion of his Family is eſtabliſh'd. The Author of The Conduct of the Allies, whom the Party eſteem as their Invincible Champion, told us, long ago, that the Nation might be under a Neceſſity of altering that Succeſſion, and therefore rail'd at the Barrier-Treaty, which he inſinuated, put it out of our Power, without the Conſent of the States, with whom that Treaty was made; and yet you ſee that this traiterous Libeller is ſo far from being afraid of Puniſhment, that he in a manner laughs at my Lord-Chief-Juſtice, for ſaying, he was guilty of Treaſon for writing after that manner. You likewiſe know, Roger, the Noiſe we had laſt Summer about the preſenting of the Pretender's Medal in a very ſolemn Manner to a Body of Lawyers in North-Britain; upon which Medal, the Impoſtor uſurp'd Her Majeſty's Titles. Yet all theſe Things have paſs'd with Impunity, as if we had no Laws againſt Treaſon.

Countrym. I muſt confeſs, Maſter, theſe Things look with a very ſtrange Aſpect; but though Juſtice ſeems to be aſleep, I hope ſhe will awake ſome time or other, and put a Stop to thoſe treaſonable Practices; nor am I without Hopes, for all the Inſolence of the Faction, that ſome of them may ſing a Pſalm at Tyburn before the Sheriff's Guard, inſtead of the St. Germains Sonetto, That the King ſhall have his own, which was play'd before the City Train'd Bands: But we are gone off from the News of the Peace, Maſter; I want to have your Thoughts of that.

Obſ. Preſently, Roger; but ſince we are talking about the Hanover Succeſſion, I can't forbear to obſerve, that our raging Faction, notwithſtanding all their former Addreſſes, in which they profeſs'd an uncommon Zeal for it, do now run counter to it in all their Proceedings, and advance ſuch Doctrines as perfectly defeat the Ends for which it was ſettled. Every one knows that the Reaſon of ſettling that Succeſſion was to preſerve our Religion and Libertys, which were reſtor'd to us by the late happy Revolution; but now you ſee that theſe things are ſo far from being accounted valuable Bleſſings, that the Faction make all the haſte they can towards the Religion of Rome and the Politicks of France: They have unchurch'd at once all the Proteſtant Churches in the World, except what they think fit to call the Church of England, and declared, That they'll have no Communion with them. They boldly advance from the Pulpit the neceſſity of Confeſſion to a Prieſt, and Abſolution from him. They have likewiſe fallen in with that grand Article of the Church of Rome, which makes the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper a Propitiatory Sacrifice; and they approve her Ordinations to be valid, when they declare thoſe of all the Proteſtant Churches to be null. Theſe are the Doctrines now in vogue, Roger; and ſince they ſtrike at the very Foundation of the Reformed Religion, for the Preſervation of which the Hanover Succeſſion was eſtabliſh'd, we are not to wonder that theſe Men ſhould put it in the Mouth of their Tool Abel to call that Family an unneceſſary Come-over.

The other great Reaſon for ſettling that Succeſſion, was the Preſervation of our Civil Libertys, according to the Declaration of Rights which was inſiſted upon by our Convention at the late Revolution, as our Birth-Rights. But now you ſee, that the very Revolution which reſtored us to thoſe Rights, is condemn'd as a Rebellion, and an abſolute uncontrolable Power in the Prince is preach'd up, which deſtroys all our Libertys at once; for if that Doctrine be true, our Laws, Magna Charta, Declaration of Rights, and every thing elſe, are but meer Cobwebs, that may be ſwept down at the pleaſure of the Prince, according to the laudable Method of Lewis XIV. with a Tel eſt notre plaiſir; i. e. Such is our Will and Pleaſure. Theſe things being ſo, Roger, it is evident, that the raging Faction which maintains thoſe Principles, not only condemns the Hanover Succeſſion as founded on Rebellion, but have declared themſelves Enemies to the very Ends for which it was ſettled. Beſides the avow'd Friendſhip there is betwixt that Faction and Lewis XIV. whoſe Cauſe they eſpouſe againſt that of all our Confederates, which is the Common Liberty of Europe, is of it ſelf a Demonſtration that they are Enemys to the Hanover Succeſſion.

Countrym. I am fully ſatisfy'd of the Truth of what you ſay, Maſter; but as the Faction runs counter to our eſtabliſh'd Religion and Liberties, I make no doubt but they will fall in the Attempt to deſtroy them, as their Predeceſſors have always done. Pray now let me have your Thoughts of the Peace, which is ſo much talk'd of.

Obſ. For that, Roger, you muſt have Recourſe to Abel's Maſters, who are honoured with the Secrets of the French Court, and of their Faction here. They tell us in Monday's Supplement, 'That the French King aſſembles his Council 'daily, to deliberate on the Affairs of Peace, 'and the Regulation of the Succeſſion of Spain, in 'caſe King Philip ſhould be call'd to the Crown 'of France; and that among other Articles in 'the ſaid Regulation or Treaty, as Abel's Ma'ſters wiſely call it, there is one to hinder any 'King of France from reigning or receiving any 'thing in the whole Extent of the Spaniſh Mo'narchy, as well in Europe, as in America. 'There is likewiſe, ſay theſe wiſe Politicians, an 'Article for eſtabliſhing the Commerce of the 'Spaniſh Weſt Indies.

Now, Roger, If the Engliſh Language has not quite loſt its Propriety, here's a Treaty in the French King's Council, according to Abel's Maſters; and ſince 'tis a Bull to ſay, that the French King can treat by himſelf, Somebody elſe muſt treat with him: And if it be ſo, 'tis not only a ſeparate, but a very knaviſh Treaty; and whoever 'tis that Tricks moſt of the Confederate Plenipotentiarys at Utrecht, have certainly a Trick put upon them, if there be a Treaty thus managed in the French King's Privy Council; and that we may have no room to doubt of this, Abel's Maſters tell us in the ſame Paragraph, that they talk of the Siege of Landau as a thing certain; while at the ſame time they inform us, that the French King is inclin'd to give the Engliſh Satisfaction as to their Commerce, and likewiſe to ſatisfy the other Powers, with regard to certain Intereſts, which may induce them to come into a Peace.

Countrym. I muſt own, indeed, Maſter, that either Abel's Maſters can ſpeak nothing but Bulls, or that there muſt be a ſeparate Peace very far advanced, if their Intelligence be good; and if it be not, they deſerve to be puniſh'd for alarming the Nation and our Confederates with ſuch idle Storys.

Obſ. 'Tis an idle Story indeed, Roger, to talk of a Peace and no Peace, as it muſt certainly be if the Empire be attack'd, and the Dutch in a panick Fear, as Abel's Maſters modeſtly word it. But I have reaſon to believe, that they will not find the Emperor and the Dutch in ſuch a panick Fear when they come to fight. Fear they may be under to treat [illegible] that wiſe Abel and his yet wiſer Maſters [illegible] to preſcribe to them.

AND

The Historical Account, &c.

From Saturday April 12, to Tuesday April 15, 1712.

Vienna, April 6.

LETTERS from Presburgh say, that they make the necessary Preparations for the Coronation of the Emperor as King of Hungary, and that Prince intends to set out for that Place about the latter end of this Month. The Pope's Nuncio and the Ambassador of Venice will repair the Envoys and other Ministers are not accompany his Imperial Majesty, who designs to with him only such Officers of his Court as only necessary. Yesterday Count Gallas was the Dignity of Lant-Marescha of Bohemia, Emperor has disposed of several other great Kingdom and his other Hereditary Coun- Imperial Majesty has resolved to publish an mand that all unnecessary Plate shall be car- Mint, and designs to send thither his own, good Example to others. There are Letters Constantinople, dated the 11th and 15th past, give no certain Account of the Dispositions of to War or Peace with Muscovy. Some the Turks will be satisfied if the Czar executes of Moldavia, as to Poland and the Cossacks, e in respect to Azoph and Tangarock; tell us, that that Prince having not com- the Conditions of the said Treaty, the Grand tends, that he is not bound to observe the demands that the Czar shall give him Satis- e Charges he has been at in this War; that us shall execute the Treaty of Alt-Ranstat, to the King of Sweden and King Stanislaus; Palatine of Kiow shall be declared Great Ge- Polish Forces, and have besides the Country Cossacks given him in full Property, and several which, if true, will certainly occasion an not only with Muscovy, but also with Poland. add, that 2 Deputies of Prince Ragotski at Constantinople with some Proposals tend- new Commotions in Hungary, and that Ambassador uses all his Interest to put the ese Measures, and hearken to the Solici- Hungarian Deputies. These Advices are ery and uncertain, that there is no great laid thereupon; but 'tis very probable, rt has a better Information of the Designs or Malecontents, seeing, as we told you in they have order'd 5 Regiments that were the Rhine to continue in Hungary.

The Electoral Prince of atiently expected at Dresden; and as King given him the Direction of the Affairs of the room of the late Duke of Weyssenfeld, to express the Joy the States of Saxony, al all the Protestants of the Empire, have pon. The Imperial Infantry design'd for nds, is partly shipp'd off, and the Cavalry ir march with all possible speed, having re- rs from Prince Eugene of Savoy, to use all pedition.

, April 15. King Augustus arrived at War- stant, to the great Joy of the Poles, and was d by several Grandees on his safe arrival, m of an inviolable Fidelity. The Senators, Deputies of the several Palatinates of Po- uania, were shortly expected there, to assist al Dyet. They write from Coningsberg, Menskikof arrived there the 5th Instant, te- ing received with a Triple Discharge of the Cannon of that Place, and other Marks of Respect, by the Duke of Holstein, Statholder of Prussia. The Muscovite Forces under that Prince, continue their march for Pomerania, from whence they write, that General Bauer being advanced with 500 Horse to view the Ground about Stetin, the Garrison made a Salley, but after a Skirmish of two or three Hours, they were repuls'd into the Town with the loss of several Men. Our Letters tell us, that 4000 Swedes being marched out of Stralsund with 12 Pieces of Cannon, to beat up the Quarters of the Saxons and Muscovites at Ribnitz and Damgarten, the latter obliged them to retire. The Garrison of Stralsund has receiv'd a Supply of Provisions from Sweden, on board 10 Ships, and are daily expecting 8 more, which will be suddenly followed by a great many others, with Troops, Ammunition and Provisions, under Count Steinbock, after which, if we may credit their Reports, they will take the Field, and endeavour to fight the Saxons and Muscovites before they are joyned by the Danes. They write from Berlin, that the Czar is shortly expected there, and that he is to reside this Summer at Schwed, a Seat belonging to the late Markgrave, Brother to his Prussian Majesty, to be ready to give such Orders to his Forces in Pomerania, as the Emergency of Affairs shall require. The Swedes in Bremen, seem under great Apprehensions of an Invasion on the part of the Danes, tho' it is hotly discours'd, that the Troops of the Czar and King Augustus, being thought sufficient to carry on the War in Pomerania, the King of Denmark designs to make a new Descent into Schonen, where he hopes to meet with a better success than in the former, the Swedes having very much weakned their Forces on that side, for the Defence of Pomerania.

Paris, April 15. The King having resolv'd to employ all his Regular Forces in Artois, on the Rhine, Daupnine and Catalonia, the Militia is drawing together for the security of the Coasts, and other Posts, and every Parish in the Kingdom is obliged to send a Man, who is to be maintained at the Charge of the said Parish, and the Nobility and Clergy as well as the Common People are to contribute to this new Expence. The Equipage of the Mareschal de Villars is sent away for Arras, and he designs to take his leave of the King in 2 or 3 Days, to repair to the Army, which is assembling near that Place. The Mareschal de Harcourt, who is to command on the Rhine, will set out by the latter end of this Month, about which time the Duke of Berwick intends to depart for Dauphine, and the Duke of Noailles for Roussillon. The Court is very numerous at Marli, and they reckon there 60 Ladies, whereof 48 eat every Day at the King's Table, and the others with the Princes and Ministers. They write from Toulon, that 2 Men of War and 5 Frigots are sail'd thence with some Transport having 1200 Men on Board, but upon what design 'tis not yet known. King Philip has made Monsieur du Casse Knight of the Golden Fleece, in consideration of his eminent Services. They write from Spain, that the King's Ship the Fame having touch'd at the Havanna in her return from the Mississipi, took on Board the Silver and other Effects that were saved out of the Ships from Mexico, which were stranded near that Place, and is safely arrived at the Groyn.

Hague, April 19. The Earl of Strafford being arrived here from Utrecht, had a Conference with the Great Pensionary, and yesterday 7 Deputies of the States had a Conference with him at his House, about (as we hear) the Quota of the States for the War in Spain, their Contingent of Troops in the Netherlands, and of Men of War for the Service of this Year, besides the renewing of the Treaties for the Danish and Prussian Troops in the service of the Maritime Powers. His Excellency declared, that he daily expected his Grace the Duke of Ormond, and that in the mean time General Lumley had Orders to concur in every thing that should be proposed for the Good of the Common Cause, in order to oblige the Enemy to offer such Terms for a General Peace, as may render the same Safe, Honourable and Lasting. The Deputies having reported this Conference to the States, they were highly satisfied therewith. My Lord Strafford and the Deputies of the States are to have a Conference to morrow Night after the Evening Service with the Minister of Denmark about the Treaty aforesaid and the Hostilities committed by the Danes on the Elbe, to the great Prejudice of the Subjects of the Maritime Powers, and 'tis hoped these two Articles will be adjusted to the satisfaction of the respective Parties. They
